Clients of Higgs & Johnson law firm in Cayman recently donated $1,000 to the Cayman Islands Cancer Society.

"Higgs & Johnson in Cayman was proud to once again partner with longstanding clients Yael and Joram of Agar Corporation Ltd., in their very generous donation to the cancer society," said Partner of the law firm, Ms. Gina Berry. "The Agars are well known for their generosity and feel they should give back to the community in meaningful ways."

"Cancer education, prevention and support are common interests of both the Agars and Higgs & Johnson. Over the years the law firm has supported the Lions Club of Tropical Gardens and Grand Cayman, as well as the Cancer Society in their many initiatives to raise awareness and funds," Ms. Berry said.

Office Manager at the Society, Ms. Emma Hislop, said: "The Cayman Islands Cancer Society is extremely grateful for donations such as this one. This act of generosity will go a long way in assisting our efforts to support those affected by cancer, and to reduce the incidence of cancer in the Cayman Islands."

The Agars have donated funds to other equally important organisations and initiatives over the past years.
