Higgs Johnson Truman Bodden & Co employees volunteered for the Chamber of Commerce's Island wide Beach Clean Up held Saturday 25 April 2009. Veronica Fierro, who has volunteered for the last 8 years, was joined by Bien Feliz, Claudia Schwenn and Vicki Chatfield from the firm.

Veronica commented, "It is our generation's responsibility to keep Grand Cayman clean so that our children and grandchildren can enjoy its natural beauty in the years to come. It was excellent to see that so many volunteers helped this year and I hope that even more young people will see the importance of being involved next year."

Employees from the firm cleaned the Beach at South Sound Dock on South Sound Road and also the area of woodland across the road from the beach. Higgs Johnson Truman Bodden & Co is committed to preserving the environment and is considering implementing a "going green" initiative.
